Conspiracies abound, and every man of walk in his garden, on account of the nummore or less note is thought to be impliber of persons who are waiting and watchcated in them. Santa Anna is evidently ing to see him, and who would immedion the watch for such attempts, and meets them by decrees of banishment to the interior, or complete exile. A few days before our informant left the city of Mexico a universal sensation was occasioned there in consequence of several prominent persons being brought under these instruments of governmental authority. Among them were Robies, formerly Minister of War; Haro y Tamariz, who, a few weeks since, was Santa Anna's Minister of the Treasury; Munos Lierdo and Luis de la Rosa, late Mexican minister at Washington city, Robles was banished to the interior; Tamariz was treated in the same manner: Rosa was ordered to start from the city in forty-eight hours; and Lierdo was sent off in another direction.

As soon as this news spread through the city, every man of any note supposed his own turn was next to come. Rosa was ill in bed when he received the order ticles brought from the country to be sold for his departure. He advertised his day. The other Senors made like prompt gricultural and manufacturing industry, preparation for their departure.

In the meanwhile their friends exerted themselves to obtain a respite of their sentence. Tamariz called in person on Santa Anna, and the latter, as the story per says it gives the letter without vouchgoes, told his whilon minister that 'he ing, however, in the least, for the truth would just as soon shoot a lepero who of its speculations: wore a coat as one who wore a blanket." The lepero is of the lowest class of Mexicans, and it can well be imagined how crushing an insult the President's remark was to the ex-minister.

After a great deal of manoeuvring and the bringing of all kinds of influence to bear on Santa Anna, he finally consented to withhold his decrees for the present. by Wm. Allen.
